Annual Report

2004 Chairman's Report

Alan K. Simpson

Chairman, Board of Trustees

I never did meet Vernetta Hidde — but I surely wish I could have done so. In fact, no one associated with our fine Buffalo Bill Historical Center (BBHC) had ever known of Vernetta — that is, until Easter of last year. When she died in April 2004, this remarkable, elderly lady from Torrington, Wyoming — down Goshen County way — provided a handsome sum for our Center in her will.

We are not certain if she ever even visited the Center, but clearly the things we did and the mission we performed were important to her. We are told that Vernetta had many a BBHC book or brochure on tables and nightstands throughout her beloved home. More than that though, we are very pleased and proud that there are many other “Vernettas” out there. Like this fine woman, they quietly support us — year after year — with their memberships and their donations. At our last count, we had over 5,000 members and 650 donors with more and more being added each day. Now that’s a reason for us to “toot our own horn.”

And we are all so very grateful.

We also remain so pleased and proud of all the unique opportunities we have to offer our visitors. Nowhere is the old saying, “A good time was had by all” more appropriate than with the goings-on at the Buffalo Bill Historical Center. It’s a good place to have a good time! My remarkable wife, Ann (51 years with that lovely lady!), and I are always amazed at the creativity of the folks at the BBHC who consistently put together wonderful programs and events that simply get better and better. Sometimes it almost looks quite exhausting to me as to what they plan and present — but they do it with great grace, patience, energy and good spirit.

From Cowboy Songs and Range Ballads to Plains Indian Museum Powwow to the Patrons Ball, there is never a lack for something special to be happening at the Center. We always benefit in a generous way from the Rendezvous Royale week in September. Our own Patrons Ball, which is always a “whale of a great time,” netted us over $120,000. Add another $97,000 to that from proceeds from the Buffalo Bill Art Show & Sale, and you can darn sure see why this particular week in September is so very popular in the Cody Country — and so much fun!

Let me say again what an honor and privilege it is for me to be associated with the Buffalo Bill Historical Center. I think we all appreciate so much the capable leadership of Dr. Robert E. “Bob” Shimp, and I count it a real blessing indeed to work with each and every member of our wonderful staff, this amazing corps of volunteers, and a most dedicated Board of Trustees and Advisory Board members. We have a terrific story to tell and terrific people on board to tell it; and I do look forward to more and more opportunities to do just that in the coming year.

My hunch too — is that Vernetta would have surely wanted it that way.

Respectfully and sincerely,

Cornet. Chicago Music Co., Chicago, Illinois, November 12, 1902. Buffalo Bill Historical Center, Cody, Wyoming. Gift in memory of William A. Bell and Leonard Cody Bell by Mrs. Frances Slattery Guilbert. 1.69.6106

William A. Bell gave this cornet to his son Leonard Cody Bell in 1902. Lifelong friends with William F. Cody, Bell named his son after the famous showman. Later, Cody Bell traveled with Buffalo Bill’s Wild West for one year as a bugler in 1912–1913.

2004 Executive Director's Report

Robert E. Shimp, Ph.D

Executive Director

As of this writing, Lyn and I are celebrating our third year in the Cody Country — and celebrating we are, as we count ourselves most fortunate to be a part of this fine community. Each year, as we continue to meet so many great people, we realize the true meaning of “western hospitality.” We certainly look forward to many more years in Cody.

For myself, I can't think of a better group of folks with whom to spend time than the fine staff of the Buffalo Bill Historical Center (BBHC). This is a group who holds this tenet from Aristotle, “Pleasure in the job puts perfection in the work.” Every day, as I see new projects undertaken, I am astounded at their creativity, their passion, and their hard work. It is my very great privilege to be associated with these folks, each of whom played an important part in our successes of 2004.

The first thing you'll notice about this particular Buffalo Bill Historical Center Annual Report is its inclusion in the summer issue of our membership magazine, Points West. Likewise, for those of you accustomed to receiving a summer issue of Points West, you'll find interesting new reading in the lists of acquisitions,

*“Every day, as I see

I am astounded at their

and their hard work.”*

donors, patrons, and the like, each one representing a valued relationship with the Center. This format is an experiment for us, as we wanted to share with a wider audience what we accomplished last year. We look forward to your comments.

As I looked over the many names of contributors of one kind or another to the Buffalo Bill Historical Center, I'm reminded how beholden we are to literally thousands of constituents throughout this country — indeed, throughout the world. Without the generosity of these individuals, businesses, and other organizations, the Buffalo Bill Historical Center would simply not pass muster as a world-class facility. For that, we are most grateful.

So, if you had the where-with-all to have been the proverbial “fly on the wall” last year, you'd have noticed some traditional activities here at the BBHC, along with some very new endeavors. We had exhibitions — as usual; we had programs—as usual; we had kids — as usual. What was exceptional to me, however, was that the exhibitions get better and better; the programs were more and more engaging; and kids, well, they're simply everywhere all year long — at last count, 5000 strong, plus another 3000 or so who regularly receive outreach materials. If anyone had ideas that a museum was not the place for children, a visit to the BBHC just about any time of year should dismiss that notion post haste.

The staff of the Buffalo Bill Historical Center embarked on two new endeavors in 2004. First, to respond to the changing demographics of today's traveler, Associate Director Wally Reber, headed a Visitation 2005 Task Force to study the best ways to attract visitors to the Center. Staff members examined visitor surveys and national research with an eye to enhancing our image to the traveling public, and creating a top-notch experience, quite literally from the moment their vehicles turn down our street. As this group quickly went about its work, its first order of business was to recommend an economical new family rate to make it easier for families to enjoy our facility. Just as quickly, our Board of Trustees agreed, and that rate is now in effect.

In addition, Visitation 2005 took on the task of revamping our group tour sales arena. Sophie Broussard, who started us down the road of BBHC-originated tours two years ago, is now coordinating all tours, to and from the Center. We anticipate a marked increase in this market as a result of Sophie's efforts. Last of all, the Task Force also will investigate ways to mitigate any effects we might suffer from gasoline price increases, road construction, and good ol' Mother Nature in the form of mudslides (which closed Yellowstone's East Entrance for nearly two weeks in 2004) and forest fires, an ever-present danger in the wake of continuing drought.

A second new endeavor for the Buffalo Bill Historical Center Staff was Workforce Development. Because technology plays such an important role in nearly everything we do at the Center, we felt it important to set new benchmarks for computer competency. The Workforce Development Task Force, headed by Registrar Liz Holmes, identified specific skill sets to be acquired in Phase I of the plan. With a grant from the State of Wyoming, and working with Northwest College, we were able to provide training on updated software to over 70 BBHC employees. What I found paradoxical was the way in which camaraderie was built as staff members formed old-fashioned study groups to sort out new-found knowledge. Our success has been featured prominently in the public relations efforts for the program by Northwest College. Phase II is set to get underway in May 2005.

Depending on whom you read, it's said that a worker will change careers several times over his lifetime. We certainly found that to be true for many in our number in 2004 who moved on to new challenges both within and outside our walls. We are so thankful for the hard work and dedication these folks brought to the BBHC, and while we will certainly miss them, we extend our best wishes in their new undertakings.

Our public relations department had several changes late in 2004, not the least of which was the resignation of Thom Huge, who directed that department for more than five years. Thom, who has now become the news director for our area's Big Horn Basin Radio Network, was instrumental in revitalizing a BBHC billboard campaign and coordinating the visits of our national www.buffalobillcontest.org winners from New Jersey.

Consequently the end of the year found us concluding our search for a new Director of Public Relations. As of this writing, Lee Haines of the Brookfield Zoo outside Chicago is several weeks into his new role. With the catchphrase "the best hour you spend in the West," Lee plans to make a concerted effort to reach out to visitors already in the area. He wants them to know that whether they have only a little time, or a day or two, they'll simply not want to miss the Buffalo Bill Historical Center. Lee will take the lead in our partnership with Xanterra Parks and Resorts in Yellowstone National Park. We are very excited about Lee's leadership in our marketing efforts.

Exhibitions are always the highlight of any year at the Buffalo Bill Historical Center. In 2004 we all enjoyed Wildlife and Western Heroes: Alexander Phimister Proctor, Sculptor which brought to life a wonderful artist whose sculptures grace many a public venue in the U.S. We are most indebted to Sandy and Sally Church who facilitated the exhibition, and who are donating tools, effects, and artwork of A.P. Proctor, Sandy's grandfather. This terrific collection will be eventually housed in a re-creation of Proctor's studio.

have only a little time, or a day or two, they'll simply not want to miss the Buffalo Bill Historical Center. ”*

Our photography gallery played host to photographer Barbara Van Cleve and her Hard Twist: Western Ranch Women exhibition. If you weren't able to attend this intriguing exhibition — or any other for that matter — visit our website at www.bbhc.org to find out what you missed. With stories about our signature events, educational programming, and all things Western, our website continues to be the best one-stop shop for everything you want to know about the BBHC. Our Information Technology Coordinator, John Gallagher, tells me the “hits” to our website now number 1.9 million per month!

From prints to books to fine jewelry, Dean Swift and his staff at Museum Selections are always on the lookout for unique merchandise to offer our visitors. Our Business Enterprise sector continues to have impressive success with its remodel of the Eatery, now called Mustang Grill, and the addition of an incredibly popular coffee bar called Pony Expresso. I had no idea there were so many ways to drink coffee! And, of course, our e-commerce site becomes more and more integral to our sales efforts.

Finally, this last year has been a year of considerable exploration as we pondered two very intriguing ventures presented us, one successful and one — well, not so much. First, we worked tirelessly with several different entities in Scottsdale, Arizona to determine the feasibility of a second Buffalo Bill Historical Center located there. While we eventually decided such an enterprise was not viable, we are very happy with the new friendships we formed there.

Secondly, due to the generosity of several donors, we were able to purchase an office building just south of our RV parking lot. We have been in serious need of more office space as well as providing an after hours venue for educational programming. What you'll come to recognize as “the Allen Street property” fits the bill on both accounts. As you can imagine, all eyes are on this property to become the headquarters of our Cody Institute of Western American Studies effort.

These days, we've started saying that “it takes a big voice to tell the story of the American West; it takes the Buffalo Bill Historical Center.” Clearly, we realize that it takes an even bigger group of trustees, advisory board members, volunteers, docents, interns and staff to make the story come to life. I, along with our Chairman, the Honorable Alan K. Simpson, am indebted to each one.

Respectfully,

Board of Trustees

Water, water everywhere, and not a drop to share

From the local resident irrigating her lawn, to the giant corporation using hydro-electric power to operate a factory, water has historically always commanded attention. The questions of who owns the water, and who has access to it are at the very center of many a clash throughout the ages. Nowhere is this more evident than in the American West, where, in the 19th century, laws were passed to regulate water in hopes of abating such conflicts. Even today, the federal government, states, sovereign tribes, corporations, and individuals compete for more water — and it doesn't appear the quarrels will end any time soon.

On October 13–15, the Buffalo Bill Historical Center (BBHC), in cooperation with the University of Wyoming College of Law, is bringing together a host of specialists in the fields of law, commerce, history, and environmental studies to explore this timely subject. Entitled The Culture of Water-Watering the West: The Evolution of Ownership, Control, and Conflict in the West, this symposium promises to be engaging and educational with lively discussion and challenging scenarios. Topics will examine the future of water in the West, the issues involved with preservation and conservation, and inter-jurisdictional concerns. For more information, see the BBHC website at www.bbhc.org.

Your journey west starts in our library

Dr. Robert S. Martin, Director of the Institute of Museum and Library Services (IMLS) in Washington, D.C., has agreed to join the McCracken Research Library Advisory Board members and invited guests as they celebrate the library's 25th anniversary this June. On the IMLS Web site, Dr. Martin writes, "Museums and libraries preserve our rich and diverse culture and history, embedded in their collections of primary sources, and transmit that heritage from one generation to the next." Maggie Scarlett of Jackson Hole, Wyoming, Chair of the McCracken Library Advisory Board, and IMLS Advisor, noted, "Having Dr. Martin as our guest is a great honor for the BBHC and the entire state of Wyoming. His presence adds credence to our efforts at strengthening and expanding the role of our very own McCracken Research Library." The library's collections include a variety of printed and electronic library materials as well as extensive archives, all related to the history and culture of the American West.
